Within these graves inclose the sacred dust,
Of them whose souls are plac'd amongst the just,
Belov'd by all while in this world they stay'd,
Lamented more when in the grave were laid,
But now they're gone into the joys above
To their redeemer and their God of love.

A wasteing sickness gave each fatal blow,
Each stroke was certain tho' the effect was slow ;
When pain and death saw us long distressed,
Pitied our sight, and kindly gave us rest
